Conservation with purpose

Sandfontein drives a vision of ecological repair and rewilding in direct partnership with ORKCA (Orange River-Karoo Conservation Area).

As a dedicated steward of the land, Sandfontein collaborates closely with our conservation partner, ORKCA, to create a vital corridor where the landscape, wildlife, and community thrive. This partnership represents a commitment to more than just land management; it is a profound return to the natural rhythms of this ancient ecosystem.

"Our relationship with the wilderness is not just about preserving it for future generations but also about healing ourselves in the process."

- Dr Ian McCallum

Hugging the banks of the Orange River, the Sandfontein Nature Reserve covers a vast swathe of ecologically important land and remains almost completely untouched.

- Eco-Conscious Design: The reserve operates entirely on solar energy to preserve its pristine silence and locally sourced materials were used to build the eco-conscious Lodge, Suites and Villa
- Organic Living: We lean on the land's own resources, harvesting fresh fruit and vegetables daily from our private gardens along the Orange River.
- Ecological Restoration: Over the years, Sandfontein has expanded the boundaries of the reserve and re-introduced additional species to allow the wilderness to return to its original, flourishing state.
